

Broadcast from Home – Chapter 6: “Morning Again”

Texts:

Morning again. It's not over yet. In this tiny, remote desert town, we are dangerously old...Meanwhile, we can sit outside the Post Office waiting for the mail, six feet apart. There are no stores, no businesses here...What can I touch? It's hard to breathe. When I get back home I wash everything, beginning with my hands.

- Kathy Goss, 78 years old, Darwin, CA, May 2, 2020

Coming off a plane from Morocco, my life completely changed: no job to return to, no friends to speak with in person, no next trip...

- Sarah Dana, 67 years old, Cincinnati, OH, April 30, 2020

[plus other improvised texts]
